Marketing Product Brief

Prepared by Product Marketing for internal launch-readiness planning

FlexLine Business Credit

Status: Limited pilot completed; general launch scheduled in three weeks.

WHAT IT IS

A revolving business line of credit that allows approved small-business customers to access funds as needed, up to their available credit limit. Customers incur costs only when they draw funds.

KEY FEATURES

- Credit limits from $2,500–$125,000
- Approved draws may be deposited into the customer's business account as soon as the next business day
- Customers may select a 16-week or 26-week repayment schedule for each draw
- Payments are made on a fixed weekly schedule
- No application fee and no penalty for early repayment
- Available credit replenishes as outstanding principal is repaid

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants generally must:

- Have been operating their business for at least 9 months
- Demonstrate at least $120,000 in annual business revenue
- Connect an eligible business bank account through a read-only connection used during underwriting
- Operate within an eligible U.S. jurisdiction

PRICING

- Pricing is assessed at the individual draw level rather than as an annual membership or maintenance charge
- Before completing a draw, customers are shown the total financing cost associated with the selected amount and repayment period
- Typical financing costs vary based on business qualifications, draw amount, and repayment term
- There are no separate annual, maintenance, or account-opening fees

COMMON MISCONCEPTIONS

- Customers may confuse FlexLine Business Credit with a traditional term loan. FlexLine is revolving credit rather than a single lump-sum loan.
- The disclosed financing cost should not automatically be described or compared as an APR. Representatives should use approved terminology when explaining pricing.
- Each draw has its own defined repayment schedule. Existing draws cannot simply be extended into a longer repayment term.
- Repaying principal restores available credit; it does not automatically increase the customer's approved total credit limit.
- Underwriting considers business financial activity and cash flow. A strong personal credit profile does not guarantee approval.
