

WHAT IT ISPRODUCT FUNDAMENTALS

FlexLine Business Credit is a revolving line of credit for small businesses. Northstar approves the business for a maximum credit limit. The customer may draw only the funds they need from that available amount and repay each draw according to its selected repayment schedule.

Customers incur financing costs only when funds are drawn — not simply because a credit line is available.

IT'S A LINE, NOT A TERM LOAN.
Never describe FlexLine as a single lump-sum loan.

AT A GLANCESPECS & ELIGIBILITY

KEY FEATURES

ELIGIBILITY

Credit limit	$2,500–$125,000	✓ Business operating for at least 9 months
Funding	Next business day after approved draw	✓ Minimum $120,000 annual business revenue
Repayment term	16 or 26 weeks per draw	✓ Eligible business bank account connected via read-only connection for underwriting
Payments	Fixed weekly schedule	✓ Operates within an eligible U.S. jurisdiction
Application fee	None
Early repayment	No prepayment penalty
Replenishment	Restores as principal is repaid

PRICING & COMPLIANCE GUIDANCEREAD BEFORE EVERY CALL

Where cost is assessed

When cost is shown

What it depends on

Other fees

Per individual draw

Before the customer accepts the draw

Business qualifications, draw amount, repayment term

None — no annual, maintenance, or account-opening fees

⚠ DO NOT CONVERT OR COMPARE TO APR

The disclosed financing cost is shown to the customer for their specific draw. Representatives must not independently convert, quote, or compare this figure to an APR.

GENERAL GUIDANCE BELOW

EXACT SCRIPTING — PENDING COMPLIANCE CONFIRMATION

ILLUSTRATIVE SCENARIOREVOLVING CREDIT MECHANICS

Ridgeline Landscaping Co. — fictitious business, for illustration only

Operating for 14 months with $210,000 in annual revenue, Ridgeline meets FlexLine eligibility. After connecting their business bank account, they're approved for a $40,000 credit limit.

They draw $12,000 on a 16-week term to purchase equipment. Before accepting, they see the total financing cost for that specific draw and term — the cost is disclosed upfront, not estimated or annualized.

$40,000
TOTAL CREDIT LIMIT

$12,000
DRAW OUTSTANDING

$28,000
REMAINING AVAILABLE

16 wks
REPAYMENT TERM

As Ridgeline repays the $12,000 draw, that portion of credit becomes available again — restoring their available credit toward the full $40,000. Their approved limit does not increase; repayment simply restores what was already approved.

Name and figures are fictitious, for illustration only.

COMMON PITFALLS & WHAT TO SAY INSTEAD		LIVE-CALL CORRECTIONS
PITFALL	WHAT'S ACTUALLY TRUE	SAY THIS
Customer thinks FlexLine is a term loan	It's revolving credit. Customers draw funds, repay principal, and restore available credit.	"Think of your credit line like a flexible business resource — you only draw what you need, and repaying frees that amount back up."
Rep describes or compares the financing cost as APR	The disclosed cost should not be converted or compared to APR. Use approved pricing terminology.	"You'll see the total financing cost for your specific draw before you accept it — that's not the same as an APR."
Customer expects to extend or refinance an active draw	Each draw has a defined 16- or 26-week repayment schedule. Active draws cannot simply be extended.	"This draw runs its full term. Once it's repaid — or as your available credit allows — you can start a new draw."
Customer confused by denial despite strong personal credit	Business financial activity and cash flow drive underwriting. Personal credit alone doesn't determine approval.	"Approval is based mainly on your business's financial activity, not your personal credit score alone."
Customer confuses restored credit with an increased limit	Repaying principal restores available credit. It does not raise the approved total limit.	"Repaying that draw frees up credit within your current limit — it doesn't raise your total approved amount."

CUSTOMER Q&A	FROM THE LIMITED PILOT
"Why does the financing cost look different from the APR I saw somewhere else?" "This isn't priced as an APR, so it isn't really an apples-to-apples comparison. You'll see the total financing cost for your specific draw before you accept it." Do not attempt an APR conversion. EXACT WORDING PENDING COMPLIANCE "I have excellent personal credit. Why didn't I qualify?" "Qualification is based mainly on your business's financial activity and cash flow, not your personal credit score alone." Avoid speculating about the specific reason for an individual decline. "Can I use FlexLine for payroll or inventory?" UNRESOLVED "I don't have confirmed guidance on that use case, so I don't want to give you an incorrect answer. Let me verify the policy using our approved resources."

OPEN ITEMS TO CONFIRM BEFORE LAUNCH Use-of-funds restrictions The supplied product brief does not state whether funds may or may not be used for specific purposes such as payroll or inventory. Early repayment and financing cost No prepayment penalty is confirmed, but the supplied materials do not state whether early repayment changes the originally disclosed financing cost. Compliance-approved pricing language Exact approved wording for conversations involving APR comparisons should be confirmed with Compliance. Credit-limit increases The materials explain replenishment but do not define whether or how customers can request an increase to their total approved limit. Underwriting explanation Clarify the level of detail representatives are permitted to provide regarding connected-bank information and underwriting. Decline conversations Obtain approved guidance defining what representatives may explain about a decline and when escalation is appropriate.
--